THIS WYOMING TOWN LIKES WOMEN'S RULE

(By Associated Press)
Jackson, Wyo., June 8.—Jackson, after a year's trial of petticoat government, has found it good. Half a century ago the first jury of women to be impaneled in the United States was drawn in Wyoming, and 20 years later Wyoming insisted, and won its point, that it be admitted to the Union without one single change in its constitutional provision giving women equal suffrage rights with men. Since then the feminist movement has developed astonishingly. And so, when the votes were counted at Jackson Tuesday night, they showed the following results:

For mayor: Mrs. Grace Miller, 57; L. W. Spicer, 21.

For councilmen: Mrs. Genevieve Van Vleck, 67; G. R. Blaine, 19; Mrs. Faustina Haight, 66; Almer Nelson, 18.

Just a year ago this picturesque little western town, with a population of 526 by the latest census, nestled beneath the beetling peaks of the Giant Tetons, in the heart of the famed Jackson's Hole country, startled the nation by turning out its man-made administration and installing a town government made up entirely of women. The victory was all the more notable because of the fact that Mrs. Rose Crabtree had been elected to the town council over her husband. Evidently the women of Jackson had decided to spoil the town's glamorous reputation as the rendezvous for bad boys, twogan desperadoes.

The exact issue in the campaign a year ago is a matter for argument but whatever it was the women won decisively. This year it was the same thing over, a three to one landslide.

During their year's tenure, the five women of the town's administration managed to keep Jackson clean, morally and physically, and in addition they brought about a number of municipal improvements. They transformed what used to be country lanes into city streets; they acquired a site for a cemetery to take the place of the old family burying ground; and they are now working on a plan for a modern, adequate water system to replace the present system of irrigating ditches led by nearby Cache Creek.

A few days after the election, May 10, Miss Pearl Williams, the town's 22-year-old marshal, announced that she would not seek reappointment of the new administration. When asked why not she replied: "I've had plenty. Besides, Jackson has become so quiet and orderly that the town doesn't need a marshal any more."

TO START CAMPAIGN FOR BETTER SHEEP

(By Associated Press)

Lexington, Ky., June 7.—In order to assist farmers of the state in selecting those sheep from their flocks which are the most profitable from the standpoint of wool and lamb production and to suggest the best methods of mating, a sheep culling campaign touching ten counties will be started July 1st by the Animal Husbandry Department of the College of Agriculture. The campaign will be in charge of R. C. Miller.

The first county to be visited will be Carroll county. Other counties already chosen are Owen, Boone, Fayette, Oldham and Jefferson. A number of western Kentucky counties will be elected later. The work will continue through the summer and fall with the cooperation of county agents.

County agents will arrange community meetings at which the extension specialists will address sheep raisers. Moving pictures and lantern slides will be used. These meetings will be held at night and on the following day a demonstration of culling sheep will be held on a farm in the same community.

"No phase of farming offers greater opportunities for profit than sheep raising providing proper attention is given to the selection of the foundation stock and subsequent mating in order to produce the best lambs as well as the largest wool clip," said Mr. Miller in speaking of the campaign. "It will be the object of the campaign to assist farmers in selecting only those animals which give indication of being the best ones for improving the quality of wool as well as the number of lambs. Many ewes are not suited to breeding purposes, some of them being too old, some lacking constitution, some quality and others have a coarse fleece. By helping farmers to eliminate these animals it is hoped that the standard of the flocks of the state will be raised."

HORSE FIGHTS ENRAGED LION

Circus Audience in Ohio Gets Real Thrill as Jungle Beast Loses Temper.

Cincinnati.—Real thrills were provided the audience in a near-battle between a lion and a horse during a circus performance at Cincinnati.

In the act shown in the big steel arena the lion jumps on and off the horse's back, circling the ring. Failing to negotiate a leap from the platform to the horse's back the lion hit the turf. Just then its trainer cracked his whip. By force of habit the lion, enraged, tried to leap onto the horse's back again. It failed, but ripped off part of the steed's saddle. The lion made a second leap, its claws tore the horse's right hind leg and lacerated its back. The horse fought back gamely with its heels, kicking madly.

By this time the spectators realized that the fight was realistic. The trainer and his assistants finally drove the animals apart. The horse was treated by a veterinarian.

BEGGING LESS, CRIME GROWS

France Finds More Women and Children in the Criminal Class Since War.

Paris.—There is 80 per cent less begging in France than previous to 1914, according to police statistics, but theft has increased in about the same proportion.

The police explain this phenomena by saying that the temptation constantly held out to the gaily inclined to enjoy themselves appeals to those who cannot afford it as well as to those who can.

Criminality among women and children has notably increased. Among 100 persons found guilty of crime before the war there were 12 women and five minors; there are now 30 women and 14 minors in every 100 convicted. Besides the temptation to have a good time, the police say sensational moving pictures have had a great deal to do with the development of crime among women and children.

South Dakota Cowboy Ropes a Live Eagle

Stout City, Ia.—Thomas Hale, a cowboy on a ranch near Gregory, S. D., captured a live eagle with a lariat, according to a special dispatch from Gregory. Hale saw the eagle swoop down on a calf. Waiting until the bird had eaten its fill he rode toward it, roped it and carried the captive home.

A Correction

The clipping taken from the Winchester papers which was published in the Daily Register Tuesday in which Jack Hardin was mentioned in a wreck with the car of Mr. and Mrs. O. P. Jackson, of that city, was untrue according to the information received this morning. Mr. Hardin was not out of the city Sunday and it would hardly seem possible that he could have been in a wreck when he was not riding in a car that day. The correction is gladly made and Jack's many friends are glad that the report was untrue.

Live Trade Paper Highly Endorses Local Publicity

In the April issue of the Zenith we find the following:

"In 1920 the advertising bill in the United States newspapers totaled nearly $600,000,000.

"Many merchants, because they are the only dealers in the community think that advertising is a useless waste and expense. 'Why spend money advertising when the customers have to come to me, anyway?' they argue.

"The only time a customer must buy from his local store is when the mails can't reach him, and mail order business is out of the question, or when a customer is in immediate need of some article and must have it without delay.

"The dealer with the mighty weapon of newspaper advertising creates new customers, awakens demand and creates good will. The purpose of advertising is not alone to sell goods the customer needs, but to create needs."
